

Samara Capital takes an exit from AIG Hospitals, sells its stake to Quadria Capital

Samara Capital, a leading mid-market buy-out private equity fund, has completely exited its 5-year old investment in AIG Hospitals. The existing institutional investor Quadria healthcare has acquired the stake. During the tenure of Samara's investment, the equity valuation of AIG Hospitals has grown over 4-fold.

AIG Hospitals is one of the largest hospital groups in India today with over 1000 beds capacity and serving over 600,000 patients annually. Its tertiary care services include gastroenterology, organ transplantation, oncology, cardiology, nephrology, urology, obesity and metabolic therapy, pulmonology, liver sciences and hepatology.

The hospital group is globally renowned for its clinical excellence, ability to handle complex cases and conducting pioneering research in its chosen specialties. AIG Hospitals is also the only Indian hospital group to become a member of the global Mayo Clinic Network to extend expertise in the fields of medical research, education and training to help patients in India.

Sumeet Narang, Founder and Managing Director, Samara Capital said, "Samara has been a keen investor in the healthcare sector and has been at the forefront to invest and back pioneering companies in this field. We have been honored to be associated with AIG Hospitals as it's first institutional investor. During our investment tenure, the company has added bed capacity almost 4-fold and has also created new centers of excellence transforming from a super-specialty to a multi-specialty hospital."

Commenting on the development, Dr D. Nageshwar Reddy, Chairman and Managing Director, AIG Hospitals said "We at AIG Hospitals are passionate about bringing world-class medical expertise, innovation and technology to India for the benefit of our communities. We had a good association with Samara Capital who supported us in our growth initiatives and would like to thank them for their contribution."
